Featuring Dr. Brian Thomas

Research Scientist, Institute for Creation Research, Dallas, Texas

We are so pleased that Dr. Brian Thomas has agreed to be our featured speaker for Creation Weekend October 24 and 25, 2025.

Not only can Dr. Thomas point to impressive recent research, published in a technical journal, but he has interests in a broad spectrum of other origins' issues as well. In 2019 Dr. Thomas completed his doctoral research project from the University of Liverpool on the contents of dinosaur fossils. That study involved an exceptionally well-preserved Edmontosaurus duckbill dinosaur from Montana.

Dr. Thomas is scheduled to speak in Edmonton on that fascinating topic, entitled Fresh Fossils from Four Continents on Friday evening (October 24).

Dr. Thomas draws on his broad familiarity with other issues in his presentations planned for Saturday, October 25. In the morning in The Beginning of Life, he demonstrates how amazing molecular machines produce clearly created features that leave us awestruck.

Lastly Dr. Thomas turns his attention to the failure of Darwinism to explain how creatures adapt in response to their environment. Many people will love this family friendly discussion. The title of the presentation is How Creatures Adapt, scheduled for early Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Thomas has published on numerous topics including the apologetics book Living in the Light of Genesis. Be sure not to miss these insightful presentations which will help us to relate better to God, others and the creation!
